CLINICAL EDUCATION SEMINARS SET
AT UM SCHOOL OF LAW THIS WEEK

MISSOULA--

The Student Bar Association of the University of Montana School of Law is sponsoring a series of clinical training seminars for law students and local attorneys this week/ in the UM Law School. From 11 a.m.-1 p.m. Wednesday, March 2, job interview techniques, a seminar on effective interviewing for a legal job, will be presented. Panelists will be attorneys James Aiken, Great Falls; Gail Goheen, Hamilton, and Larry Riley, Missoula.

On Thursday, March 3, from 2-5 p.m., a discussion entitled "Family Law: a seminar concentrating on The Uniform Marriage and Divorce Act," will feature Missoula attorneys John Patterson, Klaus Sitte and Ronald MacDonald.

Environmental law scholar Joseph Sax, professor of law at the University of Michigan, will speak on land use regulation and energy development from 9-11 a.m. Thursday, March 3. Professor Sax's talk is open to the public.

The seminars are part of the "Bridge the Gap" clinical training series financed by a grant from the Law Student Division of the American Bar Association, with matching funds provided by Dean Robert Sullivan of the School of Law. The program is designed to "bridge the gap" between theoretical and academic study of law and the practical day-to-day problems in practice.

The series was initiated on Tuesday, Feb. 22, with a talk by Robert Gibbs, Seattle, a representative of the National Lawyers Guild, on Alternative Forms of Practice.

Programs in the series have been arranged by Diane Rotering, Clancy, president of the Student Bar Association, and Greg Todd, Billings, coordinator of the SBA Speaker's Committee.
